Strategic Controlling

You cannot manage what you cannot measure

People benefits include understanding what controlling is, what are the strategic objectives, and how their actions, linked together, could support the manager to run the company towards its strategic objectives. They do not perceive anymore controlling as a control function but as a management one.

Organisation benefit: the controlling system provides the relevant information for the management act. It leads to organisation coherence, efficiency and, in general, the ability to act in a more and more unpredictable and complicated economic environment.

The Program is constructed around a case study: how we implemented a controlling system in a company in Romania. The participants learn about controlling instruments, including specific controlling approaches in an agile environment, Objective Key Results (OKRs) and strategic planning.

The program can be configured depending on the group or specific requirements.

Participants: max. 15 Persons (classroom or online)

Cost: starting from ~~1.400~~ 900 EUR
